Our college website offers essential information for stakeholders, while faculty members share updates on lessons, question banks, and lab manuals on the site. Google meet and Google classroom are used for conducting classes, sharing notes, and assigning work to the students during Covid – 19 Pandemic Period. In addition, we also organize competitions, webinars and alumni talk series to enhance programming skills, provide entertainment, and share knowledge.

Licenses and software

We ensure sufficient software as per Anna University Curriculum. All laboratories on campus are equipped with required software, which is extensively used for classes, research work, training, certification programmes and more. While we prioritize necessary required software, we also promote to use of open-source software whenever possible. We focus on system administration and technical support, which include software installation, network monitoring and internet connection

Promoting free and open source software (FOSS)

Free and open source software (FOSS) community is, “By the community, For the community, of the community, To the community on No profit No loss basis. Open source software, will always remain free. There is no license to pay to anybody.” The central and state governments have introduced policies on the adoption of open source software, which make it mandatory for all software applications and services of the government be built using open source software. The government realizes that, free software presents a unique opportunity in building a truly egalitarian knowledge society.
